Headline:
Dry and warm, with hazy sunshine. Fog possible overnight.

Today:
A fine and dry day, with any low cloud and fog soon clearing to leave plenty of hazy sunshine. Patchy fair-weather cloud developing across southern areas during the afternoon. Feeling warm in the sun. Maximum temperature 20 deg C (68 deg F).

Tonight:
A dry night with clear skies for many, but cloud will gradually spread into the northwest overnight. Fog patches developing quite widely through the early hours of Wednesday. Minimum temperature 7 deg C (45 deg F).

Wednesday:
Mist or fog will clear through the morning to leave a dry day with frequent sunny spells and some patchy cloud. Cloud and patchy rain arriving overnight. Maximum temperature 21 deg C (70 deg F).

Outlook for Thursday to Saturday:
Cloudy with patchy rain on Thursday and Friday. A few brighter spells on Saturday, and a few showers in the south. Breezy for a time.
